Let the Games begin

Red Arrows fly past East London and the Olympic stadium at 20:12pm on 27 July, to mark the start of Danny Boyle's awe-inspiring opening ceremony

THE spectacular Olympic opening ceremony began in true British style when Red Arrows flew over the Stratford stadium at precisely 20:12pm. Over a billion people worldwide watched the ceremony unfold, as East London was put firmly in the international spotlight. The three-hour-and-45-minute-long event traced the history of Britain from its pastoral past – through the industrial revolution – to its post-war years, immigration boom, swinging 60s, material 80s and Britpop 90s – ending with seven young athletes lighting the Olympic cauldron.

Over 4,000 people watched the opening ceremony on a big screen at Haggerston Park – less than three miles away from the Olympic stadium itself – where crowds boogied to the soundtrack of their lives.

Elsewhere in the borough, Paloma Faith opened pop-up space Hackney House, which will showcase the borough's business and cultural offering during the Games. See pages 2-7 for more info and pics.

THE OPENING CEREMONY

Message from the Mayor

Spectacular start to the Games

THE London 2012 Games are now well and truly underway. The opening ceremony in the stadium in Stratford was watched by a billion people around the globe. It was an amazing show and a spectacular start to the Games.

Danny Boyle and his team did the UK proud. His show truly represented the creativity, diversity and dynamism that typifies the UK, London, and in particular East London and the host boroughs.

We saw our local communities recognised through a tribute to the Windrush generation of West Indian immigrants who have played such a huge role in shaping Hackney. We were reminded of the fundamental importance of public service and the pride that Britain has in the NHS.

We saw the 7/7 victims honoured.

There were thousands of volunteers involved in the ceremony, including many Hackney residents, Council staff and hundreds of Hackney schoolchildren.

Although it was a show for the whole of Britain it had a special resonance for Londoners, and for those communities who are hosting the Games.

More than 4,000 local people gathered in Haggerston Park to watch the action unfold on the free big screen the Council has provided for the 17 days of the Games.

Meanwhile, hundreds of international journalists and local business people met in Hackney House in Shoreditch to welcome the Games with Hackney-born star Paloma Faith.

Residents who had stayed at home came out of their houses to catch a glimpse of the incredible firework display over the River Lea and the stadium.

There was a real sense of pride that this global event was taking place on our doorstep.

In Hackney, much of our Olympic effort has been focused on the legacy, but the next two weeks are all about the here and now.

At the Council, we'll be working to make sure your local services can continue uninterrupted and that we make the most of this incredible opportunity to tell Hackney's story to the world.

I hope you enjoy the Games and that you will be as proud as I am to welcome the world to Hackney.

Main: Dizzie Rascal played a major role in the opening ceremony, which also included tributes to children's literature and the industrial age

DANNY Boyle's Olympic opening extravaganza showcased the best of British: from the NHS and the Windrush to the Suffragette movement and Harry Potter.

Entitled 'Isles of Wonder' – inspired by Shakespeare's 'The Tempest' – the ceremony kept things local when it opened with the ringing of the largest harmonically-tuned bell in the world, produced by East London's Whitechapel Bell Foundry.

Over 10,000 volunteers took part in the opening ceremony – many of them East Londoners.

Web developer Andrew Charles played the part of a factory worker. He said: "I live in Hackney Wick – so really close to the stadium. I wanted to be part of the Games as they're on my doorstep."

"Last night was so amazing! It's been an awesome experience."

Maureen Philogene, founder member of Hackney's carnival group, Tropical Isles, was a nurse in the NHS section. She said: "I believe the Olympic legacy will last. I've been going to the stadium for six weeks for rehearsals and I've seen it grow and get better. This is definitely a good thing for East London."

Two young people from Skinners' Academy also took part in the opening ceremony as 'petal children' in the athletes' parade. Conrad, 13, said of the experience: "I can't put it into words – it was amazing!"

Mercy, 12, revealed she got to meet Usain Bolt. She said: "He was really tall, calm and relaxed – not like a celebrity. I even got to shake his hand and gave him a hug."

"It was a great opportunity that doesn't come round often, especially for children like us. None of us thought the Olympics would involve Hackney kids."

But that is exactly the sort of legacy Danny Boyle – and London 2012 itself – hopes to achieve.

Close to 13,000 props were used – more than 100 times more than for a West End musical

HACKNEY PERFORMERS

Spectacular fireworks provided a fitting finale to the opening ceremony of the London 2012 Olympic Games

"Incredible. It's hard to comprehend that size of audience – it started to sink in when I watched the ceremony on television afterwards."

Sam Parry,
played a raver

"I didn't think about the cameras or the viewers at home until we'd left and I started getting calls from friends and family – it's been a really positive experience."

Matt Clack,
played a factory worker

"It was absolutely fantastic – the crowd was so excited and nervous – but we just couldn't wait to perform. It made me proud to be involved."

Maureen Philogene,

VOX POPS: CROWD REACTIONS

"There's a great atmosphere here tonight. It's finally here. We all very excited that it's happening on our doorstep." Naomi Pieterston and Clare Norwood, who work in Hackney Central

"I moved to Hackney in 1982 and have seen a lot of changes in the borough in that time. It feels like the rest of London has now moved to Hackney, exciting things that used to happen elsewhere are now happening on my doorstep. I can't imagine living anywhere else." Byron Johnson, Dalston

"We're here with our families tonight. There are lots of people here to see it. I am most excited about the long jump." Rory and Harry, both aged six

Haggerston Park drew in the crowds in their thousands for the Olympic opening ceremony

HAGGERSTON Park played host to an Olympic opening ceremony party when more than 4,000 spectators came out to watch the historic event on a free big screen, put on by the Council.

There were cheers, whoops, dancing and even some tears from the audience during Danny Boyle's directorial extravaganza, which celebrated all that is great about Britain – from the NHS to its music.

Even Mr Bean made an appearance during a performance of 'Chariots of Fire,' and the crowd were surprised – and delighted – to see the Queen feature in proceedings alongside James Bond, apparently parachuting into the stadium to give her opening speech.

Young and old alike respectfully stood for the National Anthem, and the Hackney crowd cheered as sportsmen and women from across the globe made their way into the Olympic Stadium. But the biggest roar was saved for Team GB as they proudly entered the arena, followed by a magnificent display of fireworks, that could be heard and glimpsed from Haggerston Park.

“It's finally here and happening where I live. I love living in Hackney”

The eyes of the world are now firmly fixed on East

London – and the word on everyone's lips as they left the park was 'amazing'.

Creative space Hackney House will showcase the best of the borough's cultural and business offerings

Main: Paloma Faith opened Hackney House, her performance was a hit with the audience. Below: The pop-up space will host a range of business and cultural events

RADIANT, dazzling and as stylish as ever, Hackney-born singer Paloma Faith was the first in the line up of fantastic performances and events taking place at pop-up space Hackney House.

The Brit-nominated singer, known for her high heels almost as much as high notes, belted out hits including 'Just

Be' at a launch event in Shoreditch on 27 July.

She entertained hundreds of businesspeople and international journalists visiting London for the 2012 Games, before they watched the opening ceremony on a big screen. And as the Queen appeared to parachute into the Olympic Stadium, the crowd whooped in unison with the spectacle of the show. Hackney House has been set up by the Council, with support from UK Trade and Investment, and funded by private sponsorship.

The stunning space will showcase the borough's business and cultural offering during the 2012 Olympic Games.

During the day, Hackney House will put on themed events looking at industries including architecture, tourism, fashion, food, investment and development. The aim is to promote the area and attract investment.

Hackney House has a main hall with screens, bar and DJ booth, while next door a business networking section offers art displays, innovative seating and information about investing in the borough.

Building a rep: the cultural programme for Hackney House has been put together in conjunction with Arcola Theatre, while Morning Lane cafe Railroad provides the food provided by Morning Lane cafe Railroad.

At night, Hackney's cultural offering is on display, with music, theatre and comedy from artists such as the Dalston-based writer Hardeep Singh Kohli. Arcola Theatre has been working with the Council for a year creating the programme for these shows. Its executive director, Ben Todd, said: "We've brought in people like Paloma Faith, Labrinth and cabaret and opera performances. "It's a creative spectacle. To have someone of the calibre of Paloma here is amazing.

"There are going to be great artists here, and today just sets the tone. It makes people think 'if this is how you've started, where do you go from here?'"

Diver Noah Williams: Hackney's answer to Olympian Tom Daley?

Diving in the deep end

AS the nation looks to Tom Daley as one of our brightest medal hopes, the career of a potential future Olympian got a significant boost.

Talented diver Noah Williams is set to benefit from a grant from the Hackney Youth Sports Fund.

The 12-year-old has already won the ASA National Skills Championship; the GBDF Novice Championships; and a number of regional competitions, including a gold medal at the London Youth Games.

Noah, who was delighted with his funding, said: "The money will pay for a Christmas training camp at Sheffield where I will be learning new dives."

Chris Snode, former GB Olympic diver and now ASA London diving manager, said: "Noah is very special and definitely worth supporting."

The Council-run fund, which has been going since 2007, has so far awarded £94,500 to local young athletes. Many have gone on to further success. Homerton-based athlete Margaret Adeoye, who received an award last year, is running in the 200 metres at the 2012 Games.

She ran a personal best on 24 June of 23.09 seconds to qualify for the Olympics.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health Social Care and Culture, said: "I'm proud that the Council has been able to help talented young athletes, so they can continue their sporting dreams."

Other talented young athletes, who have received funding this year, include: Josie Gummer, dingy sailing; Paige Whyte, ice skating; Isabella Dmochowska, fencing; Sarah Lamin, weightlifting; Solomon Onljanjo, weightlifting; Tommy Jo Holloway, football; James Kinch, swimming; and Ewan Clegg, baseball.

Young people, community groups, or coaches in Hackney can apply for Youth Sports Fund awards by filling in an application form at: www.hackney.gov.uk/c-sports-grants

News in brief

Views sought on changes to Hackney ward boundaries

RESIDENTS are being asked for their views on proposed changes to ward boundaries in the borough.

The Local Government Boundary Commission (LGBC) is suggesting there should be 13 wards with three councillors in each, and nine wards with two.

The number of Hackney councillors would remain at 57, however, it means there will be changes to the ward borders. Similar proposals are taking place across the country as the LGBC seeks to improve electoral equality so that votes are worth roughly the same – regardless of where people live.

Dr Colin Sinclair, lead commissioner for the review of Hackney, said: "We also want to ensure that our proposals reflect the interests and identities of local communities across the borough and that the pattern of wards can help the Council deliver effective local government to local people."

"In many parts of Hackney, our recommendations are based on proposals put to us by the Council. In other parts of the borough we have devised our own pattern of wards. We have an open mind about further suggestions from local people to change and improve these recommendations."

The consultation runs until 24 September. For more info, visit: www.lgbce.org.uk/all-reviews/south-east/greater-london/hackney-fer; or write to: The Review Officer (Hackney), Local Government Boundary Commission for England, Layden House, 76-86 Turnmill Street, EC1M 5LG.

Hackney's education services to return to Council

THE Learning Trust – which has managed education in Hackney for the past decade – will become part of the Council from 1 August, when its 10-year contract ends.

The Learning Trust, a not-for-profit company, currently manages relationships with schools, the early years service, and adult education.

It will become a new Council department known as the Hackney Learning Trust next month. The majority of existing staff will remain in post, and contact details will be unchanged.

The Hackney Learning Trust will become part of the Council's Children and Young People's Services Directorate.

It will continue to provide services to Hackney schools and will market its services in other boroughs in order to grow into a sustainable operation in the long-term.

Jules Pipe, Mayor of Hackney, said: "The Learning Trust has achieved a huge amount in 10 years. It has overseen great improvements in school standards, GCSE results, and primary education, and has worked in partnership with the Council to deliver capital investment into schools and the Hackney academies programme.

"I am delighted to welcome its talented staff to the Council.

"The Government has made changes to the role that local authorities have in schools, and the new Hackney Learning Trust, as part of the Council, will be well-placed to manage that change and keep improving education in Hackney."

Competition

Win tickets to the Underage Festival

MAVERICK Sabre, Skepta, Hadouken, Savages and Jessie Ware are among the confirmed acts for Underage Festival 2012. The strictly 13 to 18-year-old festival is returning for its sixth outing. Joining the 31 August party are Zulu Winter, Rustie, Dagenham-born rapper Devlin and a DJ set from Oxford quintet Foals.

The story of Underage began in 2007 when Sam Kilcoyne, 14, began organising youth club nights for his friends after being refused entry to see his favourite bands live.

His idea developed into the festival, which lets teenagers see groups in a safe environment.

Underage Festival takes place at Shoreditch Park, New North Rd, N1, on 31 August.

For more info, visit: www.underagefestivals.com

Hackney Today is giving away a pair of tickets to the show. For a chance of winning send a postcard to Underage Festival Competition, Hackney Today, Room 82, Hackney Town Hall, Mare Street, E8 1FB or e-mail: htnews@hackney.gov.uk by 10 August.

PREVIEW

The Impossible Heap

Until Aug 26, Galerie8, Arthaus, 203 Richmond Road, E8 3NJ

THE dying moves of a chess game, where the outcome becomes inevitable – but is drawn out with futile countermoves, were famously linked to the human condition in Samuel Beckett's play 'Endgame'. Now a Galerie8 exhibition, The Impossible Heap brings together new work across paint, sculpture, drawing, assemblage, collage, performance, video and other media. Projects included, such as Price & Mann's billboard interventions, social sculptures and fanzines – as well as Sarah Pager's window installation on the building's façade, will see work taken outside the gallery space. The artists included in the exhibition are interested in themes that run throughout the play – such as inter-textuality, entropy in closed systems, meaning through repetition, or control in power relationships. Much of the work positions itself within a seemingly ever-repeating world, where disaster seems perpetually inevitable and public concern seems to shift from ecological exploitation, to financial collapse, to the growing fear of increased social and political conflicts. Yet at its core, according to the gallery, the artists 'express a refusal for continual sedation and strive to revise and reimagine'. ### Basecamp

Until 12 August, 100-106 Leonard Street, EC2A 4RH.

THE Book Club has opened the gates for a free adult playground to get into the Olympic spirit over Games time.

Basecamp is an outdoor play area complete with ping pong, table football, basketball and paddling pool. The event has taken over a car park on Leonard Street and filled it with TV screens showing Olympic sports.

Get involved in some silly activities like King Pong, a round robin ping pong tournament; basketball or croquet. Keeping with the racket theme, there's also Robo pong, where a robot shoots balls and challenges competitors to see how many they can return in 30 seconds. Plus catch the BMX showcase with the UK's best BMX flatrider, Keelan Phillips, and team sports such as tug of war. Hearty British food, sustainably sourced, comes care of culinary giants Street Kitchen, known for simple menus, cooked and prepared in a caravan.

There's also quirky takes on all things sporty, neon light installation, bunting and a huge stretch tent for if rain pauses play.

Snapshots for maps

RESIDENTS with learning disabilities are being helped into employment, thanks to a ground-breaking scheme creating maps for mobile phones.

Participants in the PhotoRoute London maps project have been using their skills and experience to create maps that show step free and accessible walking routes across the capital.

Seven people with learning disabilities, aged 19 to 50, who were long-term unemployed, have been trained to produce the maps for use on android and iphone handsets.

As a result, three have already secured paid employment as mapping consultants with organisations in Hackney and London.

Digital mapping technology enables users to download, or access online, walker-friendly maps of London.

The routes are designed to aid people with physical or learning disabilities, and parents with young children.

Training is tailored to suit each person and their preferred learning style and typically takes about three months. Students learn how to apply their own experience to choosing the best and safest routes, including step free options, as well as learning photography and IT skills.

It is expected that as the demand for the maps grows so will the employment opportunities.

The Council supports the scheme. Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture said: "Giving our residents employment opportunities is one of the Council's priorities.

"I'm delighted we've been able to use this exciting project to get people into work"

"I'm delighted we've been able to use this exciting project to get people into work. We hope these maps will encourage more people, including visitors from further afield to explore the many attractions Hackney has to offer."

Kehinde Ogundeji, 41, from Hackney Central, has completed her training and is helping to produce a new map linking Hackney to a heritage trail. She said: "Yes,

I enjoy it. It is a useful skill."

Andrew Pippin, 22, helped make a map for Hackney Museum and Library, and he is also working on an East End heritage trail.

His mum said: "I'm very happy with it, Andrew is accompanied while out taking photographs and making maps. I think it's a good thing for him."

The maps will be available on the Council's website as well as those of the Victoria & Albert Museum and Greater London Authority.

News in brief

Park hub plans approved

PLANS to create a community hub in the north of the Olympic Park after the Games were approved this month. The London Legacy Development Corporation secured permission for a community building and play space surrounded by parkland.

Youngsters will be able to build dens, grow plants, investigate insects, climb trees and play on a series of platform walkways, slides and bridges connected to trees. There will also be sand and water play activities where budding engineers can create dams and locks to mimic the changes made to the River Lea after the Games. Hackney-based erect architecture won a competition to design the scheme.

The plans were approved by the Olympic Delivery Authority's Planning Committee on 24 July.

The North Park will open in phases next year, with the South Park opening in spring 2014.

Andrew Altman, Chief Executive of the London Legacy Development Corporation, said: "It will be one of the most beautiful green spaces in London with wetlands, clean waterways and beautiful parklands for everyone to enjoy."

Changes to walk-in services

LOCAL people will see changes to the way GP and walk-in services in North-East Hackney operate, following a public consultation.

From this autumn, walk-in services at Tollgate Lodge and Springfield Health centres will be reduced. Instead GP surgery opening hours in the area will be extended and an extra 8,250 people registered.

Tollgate Lodge will continue to offer a walk-in service on weekends and bank holidays however. While Springfield Health Centre will offer weekend services for registered patients only. It is predicted the changes will allow up to £500,000 per year to be reinvested in services.

Dr May Cahill, medical director for NHS North East London and the City, said: "Local people told us they use these walk-in centres because they sometimes find it difficult to register with a GP or to get an urgent appointment.

"A better level of care can be given to people who are signed on with a GP practice that knows your individual health needs.

"We have made it easier to register with a GP practice to get those appointments and there will be walk-in services available when people need them most on weekends and bank holidays."

Games time services update

Your local services during the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic games

There will be some changes to Council services during Games time. We have planned these very carefully to make sure residents continue to receive the high quality services expected.

Hackney Service Centre

The Hackney Service Centre is the main point of contact with the Council. The Service Centre will be open as normal during the Games. Opening hours are 9am to 5pm (Mon to Fri).

You can also use Council services online or call the Contact Centre on 020 8356 3000 for service information.

Do it online

The borough will be busy during Games time and contacting the Council online may be most convenient for you.

You can do business with the Council online:

www.hackney.gov.uk/do-it-online

All our service information is available online at:

www.hackney.gov.uk

Getting around during the Games

The increased volume of visitors going to and from the Olympic and Paralympic events will have an impact on residents. Please expect roads and public transport to be busy and plan ahead to make journeys easier.

There will also be changes to bus lane operating hours to accommodate the Olympic Route Network particularly in Central London.

Detailed information has been produced by Transport for London

(TfL) to help residents travel to work, around the borough, and to Olympic events. Advice is also available for businesses. Plan your journey ahead of time, check again on the day, and allow for extra time.

For up to the minute transport advice visit:

www.getaheadofthegames.com

Changes to Games time waste collections

Waste and recycling collections will start earlier on the normal day, so they the need to be put out by 6am, during the Olympic and Paralympic Games.

For more information visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/environment-planning

Registrars' services during the Olympics

Registrars will be open Monday to Friday 9am to 5pm in the Hackney Service Centre as usual however from Monday 30 July to Friday 10 August no appointment will be necessary to register a birth, death or stillbirth or give notice of marriage /civil partnership.

Birth registrations can walk in between 9am and 12noon and 2pm and 4pm. Death registrations can walk in between 9am and 4pm. Notices can walk in between 9am and 11am and 2pm and 4pm.

Visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/registrar for more information.

Changes to Hackney Wick Station

During the Olympic Games this station will operate as exit only from the westbound platform after 1pm. Westbound services will stop there to allow passengers to disembark only. Eastbound services will operate as normal.

It will not be possible to board westbound services at Hackney Wick station after 1pm and anyone wishing to travel westbound should board the eastbound service to Stratford where they should remain aboard the train for a few moments before it departs westbound. It will then stop as normal at all stations from Homerton.

Full operation of the westbound platform will be restored following the London 2012 Olympic Games and will be unaffected by the London 2012 Paralympic Games.

For the latest news and information about Council services at Games time visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/council-services-at-games-time.htm

Parking during the Games

The London Organising Committee of the Olympic and Paralympic Games (LOCOG) has worked with Hackney Council to put traffic and parking plans in place, which prioritises parking for local residents and businesses and manages the increase in traffic.

All Hackney residents and businesses affected by the temporary changes should have received a pack from LOCOG containing important information about parking.

If not, contact LOCOG by: calling 030 0111 2012; or 030777 2012; or visiting: www.london2012.com/local-residents

Penalty Charge Notice issues

The enforcement of the virtual zone is based on data supplied by LOCOG showing vehicles with a valid permit. If you receive a Penalty Charge Notice (PCN) and you believe you have a valid virtual permit you should make a representation online or write to the Council with as much information as possible. We will contact LOCOG to verify the permit query and if it shows that a valid permit exists and allows you to park at the time in the road where you received the PCN then it will be cancelled. Visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/parking-during-the-games

Parking Protection zones in place:

- The Olympic Park virtual parking area (phase 1) will remain in place until 9 September
- Zone K (Hackney Wick) and the temporary event zone from 21 June to 9 September
- Phase two of the parking controls for the Olympics will be enforced in parts of Hackney from 20 July, until 9 September. Phase two applies to the existing Controlled Parking Zone areas (CPZ).

For enquiries relating to CPZ permits, please call the Hackney Contact Centre on 020 8356 8877 and for enquiries relating to the Virtual Permit Area please contact LOCOG call centre on 0300 111 2012.

Olympic Route Network

Traffic management measures have been introduced across London and are now in operation.

Other road restrictions

- Road Event Olympic Route Network will be in place in Shoreditch during major road events – weekends of: 28/29 July; 4/5 and 11/12 August and Tuesday 7 August. During these dates there will be changes to restrictions along City Road, Old Street Gyratory and Great Eastern Street between 6am and 11:59pm.
- Cyclists and pedestrians need to be aware that the Lee Valley Tow Path is closed between Eastway and Stratford High Street.

There will be temporary road changes in particular the A12 which has a Games Lane in some sections for use by the Olympic family only from 6am to 11.59pm throughout the Games.

There will also be restrictions in place around the Lea Interchange, meaning:

- There will be restricted access to Homerton Road, between Lee Conservancy Road and Ruckholt Road (by Hackney Marshes) from 23 July to 12 August and 28 August to 9 September, from 6am to 11.59pm
- There is no right turn for any motor vehicle into Homerton Road from Ruckholt Road, operational 24 hours a day until the 12 August (it will still be open to bicycles and pedestrians, though cyclists will need to dismount). Diversion signs will advise you of an alternative route.
- There is now no access off the A12 at the Lea Interchange except for permitted vehicles.
- Eastway is closed east off Lee Conservancy Road for all vehicles but remains open to buses (W15 and 308), cyclists and pedestrians.

- Access to the A12 from Green Man Roundabout and Redbridge Roundabout is restricted.
- Due to these restrictions, the major diversion route is via Lea Bridge Road, Lower Clapton Road, Dalston Lane and Homerton High Street – delays can be expected at peak times.
- The Council may implement local traffic management measures to protect local streets from rat running traffic (eg Chatsworth Road).
- Transport for London will manage junctions with traffic signals leading to the Olympic Route Network to ensure routes to venues stay free-flowing, which could cause delays in the east and south of Hackney.

The giant 'I Love Hackney' sign on Mabley Green; badges and wrist bands promote the campaign; Arcelor Mittal Orbit (right)

A MASSIVE 'I Love Hackney' logo has been painted on Mabley Green to mark the 2012 Games.

The 60 x 43 metres sign took around 10 hours to be spray painted on to the grass by a team of two, and will last the length of the Games.

The logo is visible from the Arcelor Mittal Orbit (right) in the Olympic Park and from news helicopters. It will disappear over time. Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: "We're making the very most of our status as an Olympic host and we want to entice people from all over the world to learn about Hackney, to visit us and to invest here. "The 'I Love Hackney' campaign is about celebrating everything that people love about the borough and many thousands have pinned on a badge or worn a T-shirt. Now we want TV cameras to beam pictures of the symbol that has become synonymous with pride about Hackney all across the world."

News in brief

YH World explores the meaning of freedom at new exhibition

By Michelle Stannard, 22; Photo: Ondre Roach, 18

HAVE you ever wondered what freedom means to others? Whether it's your freedom being potentially infringed by CCTV, or the right to speak freely, all angles are examined in the YH World exhibition 'Freedom'.

Working in pairs of one writer and one photographer, we were set the challenge of expressing our understanding of freedom through writing and photography.

Taking part in the project personally has been a challenge for me, as my photographer, Ondre Roach, has a slightly different perception of freedom than I do.

Even so, we have managed to make it work well for both of us.

We have agreed on our final photos and created a poem for the exhibition. We are now really excited to see our work on display.

The exhibition will take place at the Art Against Knives shop at Boxpark, in Shoreditch, on Wednesday, 8 August, from 6pm-8pm.

It will be an opportunity to challenge your own perceptions of freedom and learn about other young people's understanding of it.

Youth Parliament selection open

YOUNG people are being given the chance to shape the borough where they live, as the nomination process for Hackney Youth Parliament gets underway.

The first group of potential candidates attended a training session at Hackney Picturehouse on July 26, where they learnt more about the role, took part in public speaking workshops, and were given advice on how to write their manifesto. Current Hackney Youth Parliament members Jermain Jackman and Rebecca Samuel, both 17, helped to run the session.

Rebecca said: "I didn't really know what I was letting myself in for when I applied, but it's been amazing. I've learnt so much and had so many great experiences. I'm much more confident now; I've had to get used to speaking in public, which is something a lot of young people don't get to do.

"The things we do really make a difference to life in Hackney – we've got members on the Council's scrutiny board, we're involved in safeguarding, we work with the police and loads more."

Jermain added: "It opens up so many opportunities for young people – I've learnt so much and really enjoyed it. We're looking forward to mentoring the new members."

The elections take place in October with polling stations in Hackney schools, colleges and youth clubs open during Local Democracy Week. At the last elections in 2010, more than 4,000 young people cast their vote. The Parliament consults young people on their views, makes sure their voices are heard and keeps them up-to-date on issues that affect them.

They also plan youth and community events, elect representatives to the UK Youth Parliament and attend regional and national events. Young people can vote according to the area they live or go to school in.

Cllr Rita Krishna, Cabinet Member for Children's Services, said: "The Hackney Youth Parliament has real influence, as well as being a fantastic way for young people to get involved and make a difference in Hackney."

"The members give us a unique insight into what young people think and want from the Council."

A further training session will take place later in the summer. For more info, or for an application form, visit: www.youthhackney.org; or e-mail: mandy.richards@hackney.gov.uk

Going against the grain...

DREADFUL riot and destruction of property at Hackney!

Not a headline from last summer, but newspapers in August 1837, when a riot occurred on Hackney Downs.

The property in question was wheat being grown by a Mr Adamson, and some of those threatening his crops had four legs rather than two.

Mr Adamson's problems arose because the Downs were part of Hackney's Lammas lands. This meant from August 13 to April 6 each year, parishioners had the right to graze cattle on the land. And from April 7 to August 12, landowners could use it for their own benefit, by renting portions to tenants for cultivation.

This was what Adamson had done, renting and cultivating 20 acres of land – half of the Downs – from the Lord of the Manor of Hackney. Poor weather however, meant harvesting the wheat was delayed and the Steward of the Manor put up a notice stating the Downs would not be open to the public until Saturday, August 25, a fortnight later than usual.

But on the morning of Monday, August 14, with most of the crop still standing, Mr Neale, a fishmonger and Mr Ambrose, a cowkeeper, turned up and started helping themselves to Adamson's wheat, alleging that as the 12th had now passed nobody could legally claim the grain, so they had as good a right as any to take it.

Neale and Ambrose were taken to the court in Worship Street, but as soon as the magistrates heard the facts of the case they dismissed it, stating the wheat could no more be claimed by one parishioner than another.

The men returned to Hackney, celebrating the victory they believed they had gained. Rumour soon spread that the wheat was the common property of the parish.

Adamson realised an attempt to steal his crop was imminent so rushed to the Downs to try to prevent it, but was savagely attacked and only saved by his workmen coming to his rescue.

Between 8pm and 1am the next morning, the Downs was a scene of chaos, with mob law prevailing as up to 4,000 people tried to grab as much wheat as they could, many bringing horses and carts to carry away their spoils. Poor Mr Adamson could do nothing but watch.

The police house was nearby, but officers did nothing to help apart from bringing back one cartload of wheat and also find a small quantity in the possession of Thomas Wright of Homerton, who was brought before the Worship Street magistrates the next day.

The grain he was caught with was valued at only half-a-crown, whereas Adamson estimated his losses at about £100. Wright was told that even if Hackney parishioners did have a right to graze their cattle after August 12, they no more had the right to take their neighbour's crop than they did to take the coat off his back. He was discharged on payment of the half-crown value of the wheat plus a penalty of 20 shillings.

A number of rioters appeared before the Queen's Bench in February 1838, charged with 'incitement for a riot out of the right to depasture on common field lands.'

Lord Denman, the Chief Justice, felt Adamson was partly to blame for not having cleared his ground by August 12, but at the same time 'the defendants had acted most improperly in resorting to violence. Such conduct might lead to bloodshed, and then, if death had ensued, every person present would be liable to be hanged for murder.'

Hackney's common land continued to be used for grazing for many years, in some cases into the early 20th century, but it was obvious respect for the old traditions was declining as the area lost its identity as a rural village.

In 1872, with housing development threatening common land, the Metropolitan Board of Works acquired the Downs and other Hackney commons by Act of Parliament to preserve them, and the Downs was subsequently opened as a public park in 1884.

The Mayor and Councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections were in May 2010.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services. They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern.

Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – illustrated in the map opposite.

To check which councillor covers your area, or confirm surgery times, call: 020 8356 3373. More info: www.hackney.gov.uk/I-mayor-cabinet-councillors.htm

The Mayor

Jules Pipe

Hackney has an executive Mayor, Jules Pipe, who is not a councillor, but is directly elected by the entire borough. The Mayor is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of the Council who is elected annually from the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Cllr Jessica Webb.

Recipes straight from the ovens at Waterhouse

www.waterhouserestaurant.co.uk

THIS is the latest in a series of regular recipes courtesy of Waterhouse – an eco-friendly restaurant alongside the Regent's Canal in Shoreditch. This issue Chef Mizana Gebretensae presents one of her favourite summer desserts. This light, creamy panna cotta is the perfect pudding for a warm summer's evening. Prepare it in advance and serve straight from the fridge with summer fruits.

Ingredients

- 1 litre of double cream
- 200ml milk
- 200g white chocolate
- 100g caster sugar
- 43 ½ gelatine leaves

Method

- Grate or fine chop your white chocolate

- Pour your cream and milk into a pan, and slowly bring to the boil
- Add your gelatine leaves and slowly stir
- When leaves are dissolved, take off the heat and slowly stir in your white chocolate
- When the mixture has cooled a little, pour into individual dishes and place in the fridge for 4-5 hours to set.

Waterhouse is a social enterprise that trains local people in the ethos of eco-friendly best practice in the restaurant industry. Owned by Shoreditch Trust, its profits go back into a regeneration programme for the local area. Waterhouse in Orsman Road, N1, is now open six days a week.

Views of gambling

RESIDENTS and businesses are being asked to have their say on a draft gambling policy for the borough.

The Council also wants to hear from individual staff and companies in the gambling industry. It will use the feedback to decide what principles should apply when it makes decisions on applications for gambling licences.

The Council's policy is based on guidance from the Gambling Commission. The licensing objectives are:

- prevent gambling from being a source of crime or disorder, associated with crime or disorder, or used to support crime
- to ensure that gambling is carried out in a fair and open way
- to protect children and other vulnerable persons from being harmed or exploited by gambling.

A review of the policy is carried out at least once every three years. The consultation ends on 14 September.

For more info, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/gambling; or call the Licensing Team on: 020 8356 4942.

Send comments to: Freepost LON 18819, Consultation Team, London Borough of Hackney, Town Hall, Mare Street, E8 1EA.

Rectory Rd parking

PARKING restrictions are set to be introduced in the Rectory Road area following a public consultation in March. Further feedback is now needed on the design and proposed operating times of the restrictions. To have your say, complete an online survey before 17 August, by visiting: www.hackney.gov.uk/zone-r-stage-2-design-consultation; or download and return it to: CPZ Team Freepost 14259, 2 Hillman Street, E8 1FB.
